

Michael Ewing-Chow at the ITAM Law Department seminar series

In April 2018, Bradly Condon hosted Michael Ewing-Chow at the ITAM Law Department seminar series. Professor Ewing-Chow delivered a paper analyzing how international trade enhances food security. The seminar was attended by the members of the law faculty at ITAM law school. ITAM provided the funding for Professor Ewing-Chow's travel and accommodation. This event was part of the Mexico WTO Chair's initiative to expand outreach and to enhance collaboration among WTO Chairs. Indeed, this seminar served as a stepping stone to the WTO Chair panel at the conference of the Society for International Economic Law in July 2018.

After Professor Ewing-Chow's seminar, we enjoyed a tour of the canals of Xochimilco, in the south end of Mexico City.
