

Summary

- The project seeks to expand and promote knowledge coproduction in developing countries on circular economy (CE) in the international trade system.
- The outcome of curriculum development is a stronger academic network in Indonesia and among developing countries (particularly through WCP network) that facilitate knowledge co-production in the field of international trade and CE.
 - Through research, curriculum development, and outreach activities, it seeks to harness our research centre (along with its WCP network) as a leading research, education, policy training, and policy making institution in the field of trade and CE and to strengthen its sustainability.
- The logical flow of the project puts research on international trade and CE linkages as the basis of curriculum enrichment and sets the path for further outreach activities.

Producing 1 research publication, 1 edited monograph, and 3 training modules on international trade and CE as well as on challenges in crafting CE policies at the subnational level.

Curriculum enrichment of 3 master course subjects relevant to international trade and CE hosted by Universitas Gadjah Mada and 5 drafts of research papers produced by master and PhD students.

Expanding 3 outreach activities to government (national and sub-national) and non-government actors (leading entrepreneurs, academia, local-based communities, and academia).
